YMCA ARCHERS performed in duel competition for the first time last Saturday against Jamestown "Y" bowmen and lost by a score of 176 to 122. On the team are (l. to r.) Mrs. A. B. Scholes, instructor, Adison Scholes, Alexis Sommers, Jerry Harris, David Co-

STILL UNDEFEATED is Warren's Bob Olson, who is seen here retaining possession of James Mc-Minn. Olson scored his seventh straight victory of the season with a 59 second, first period pin.

AS A CLIMAX to this match, Warren's Don Brian (r.) pinned Joe Baka in 2:24 of the third period. The Brockway wrestler was an undefeated three-year letterman.

IN THE RACE for the Gra-Y basketball league crown is this Home Street aggregation. Players who battled to put the team in a close fourth place with a 4-2 record are (l. to r.) front -- Jack Bufton, Dennis Shield, Thomas Gaghan, David Guiffre and Thomas Tourtellott; back -- Louis Gaghan, advisor, Bruce McCarty, James Peterson, Charles Young, John Hibner, Edward Check, Dan Dorsey and Bert Bliss. Harry Tourtellott is the team coach.

RIDING TIME was being picked up by Mickey Kondak in this picture of the Warren-Brockway meet. The Warren high junior (on top) won a 9-7 decision over Brockway's John Salandra.

Wealth And Power
— Or Public Interest

By Thomas L. Stokes

WASHINGTON. -- Often a scene tells a story.

Like the scene before us in the U. S. Senate in the past two weeks. From the gallery we look down upon an almost empty chamber, usually only three or four Senators, never more than half a dozen, for the daily legislative session. We observe how they draw together, as if for company, as they argue quietly with one another. It is like a discussion in the corner of the otherwise-empty library of a private club late at night, except for the official reporter who busily takes down the words for posterity.

In recent years such scenes are normal in the Senate, with all the chores a Senator has away from the chamber, except when there is a big issue before the body. Yet, it is really a major issue which, in the past two weeks, has been able to enlist the interest and participation of only a handful of Senators in the mausoleum-like sessions we have watched.

It is an issue that affects many millions of you, all of you who use natural gas. For the bill before the Senate, which already has passed the House, would exempt producers of natural gas from regulation by the Federal Power Commission and thus leave the consumer unprotected at the very source of the gas.

There are a few Senators who are actively and sincerely trying to stop this obnoxious bill. But they are conscious, as they carry on in this vacuum, that so far as the powers-that-be in the Senate are concerned, this is supposed to be only a sham battle, a "debate" for the record. For the sake of appearances, it would seem that Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the Democratic Floor Leader who cleverly stage-managed this puppet show, would have arranged for more Senators to stand "duty" and attend to make it look good from the galleries.

The farce gives itself away. Too slick was his careful arrangement of "full debate" which, he decreed, should be courtly and courteous -- not angry like Southerners debating segregation -- so that he could avoid a public split in the party over this measure. As you know, it is being pushed by a few big oil companies, which own most of the natural gas reserves and which will enjoy a "mark-up" of many billions in the value of those reserves by price increases if the bill becomes law.

Most of this week, the bare Senate stage has been dominated by a big, shambling gentleman who, day after day, ploughed through his exhaustive speech against the measure. For a time one day he stood alone, talking to an empty chamber and the lone presiding officer. He is the hero of this Senate saga -- in all other respects a shoddy performance -- big Paul Douglas, a Democrat from Illinois who is daring to challenge the Texas party leadership and several billion dollars. For the millions of words he has talked into the record, for all the statistics he has inserted, he really said it all in one sentence:

"The issue before us is whether the interests of wealth and power are to run the government or whether our government is to be run in the interests of the public."

That is the issue. How right he is! It is dramatized in the million and a half dollars big oil men raised among themselves and spent on their lobby, the results of which you have seen in advertisements in newspapers and magazines, and which we have seen here in the high-pressure tactics being used by the lobbyists on Senators to get them to support this gigantic "giveaway." Senator Douglas summed this all up, thus:

"Huge profits are at stake in this legislative proposal to nullify effective natural-gas regulation. If the gas producers succeed, it will cost consumers of this country from $600 to $900 million annually. It will increase the value of the known gas reserves of the nation from $12 1/2 to $30 billions... It is no wonder that 'big oil' is working and spending to put this bill through Congress."

The scene in the Senate reflecting the apathy and cynicism of those you elected as your servants to protect your interests has about it a "this-is-where-I-came-in" reminder. It carries me back to the 1920's when big money was moving the pawns about here in Washington.

But Teapot Dome and Elk Hills of the day, from which only a couple of big oil companies were to profit -- if eagle-eyed Senators Bob LaFollette of Wisconsin and Tom Walsh of Montana had not stopped them -- are chicken feed compared to the bonanza several big oil companies will get out of this bill if it passes, and legally, by donation of Congress.

Paul Douglas can have the satisfaction of having pointed out the clues for future Bob LaFollettes and Tom Walshes -- and, if we have faith in our democratic processes, we must have faith that they will come along. They always have, even if sometimes late -- after the experience has cost us so much.

You, the public, have fair warning of how your public servants are failing you in that bare cupboard which is the Senate chamber.

AFTER DANNY

Danny Kaye's reluctance to appear in television may pay off in large, fat checks. He has been offered $250,000 to star in six NBC spectaculars.

COSTLY ART WORK

Those cartoons that flash on during commercial breaks to sell you on the sponsor's product, don't come cheap. Some cost as much as $15,000 to make, and require as long as three months to prepare.

REAL FOOD

The food you see on the World Tonight program, if your line picks up Pittsburgh, is not stuffed with cotton or made out of plastic. The sponsor has budgeted $1500 to garnish its commercials with food in 1956, with Francois Anderson of the Gateway Plaza preparing the dishes. The beneficiaries are the stage crew who devour the delicacies each evening after the show.

RECORDS NOT FALLING

Our sports writer, Al Anderson, did a little digging last week and found support for our suspicions that no new records are being placed on the board by the current Warren high school basketball team, as we have heard announced incorrectly on several occasions.

The boys score well, but when you realize that under the old rules there was a center jump after every basket, and there was no rule forcing a team to hurry the ball up the floor, it is amazing how many points were piled up by teams in the past. They had less time in which to score, the game still was new and developing, the players should not have been as skilled as they are today, and the equipment was not as good.

Despite the handicaps, Al probably will reveal in this week's column that teams topped the 100 mark in scoring and individuals went over 30.

The greatest team we remember was the one which performed in the 1923, 1924 era. It had the great Al Wolfe in the line-up, but Al didn't pile up tremendous totals for two reasons. He was a play-maker and always passed off if a team-mate was in a better position. He also was playing with four boys who could shoot very well, Loath Brown, Fritz Kennett, Ed and Don Finley. Dick Schumacher joined the group the next year and he also was fast and a good shot.

At the end of one season they went onto the Y floor and played the semi-pro team of that time, known as the Nameless Five. On this team was Jap Conroy, who may have scored the most points in one game, 36, in the history of Warren high school. He also was quite a semi-pro performer. But the high school boys took them, 42 to 34. (For contrast, imagine this year's team against the pick of the Y City league.)

You can go back to 1904 and find Warren beating Sheffield, 90 to 12, and 98 to 27. The same team beat Titusville, 84 to 10. It was beaten by Jamestown, 51 to 7, then beat Jamestown, 42 to 17. The players on this one were Ralph Jackson, Edward Klepfer, Sam Ostergard, F. McNamara, Allan Branch, Harold Eaton, and Dennis Curran. Basketball had just been invented and these men were pioneering with a total of 623 points to the 292 of their opponents.

In 1906-1907 we find the surrounding high schools running for cover and the locals scheduling independent teams. They beat the Belmonts, 86 to 10, won six games and lost one.

Warren continued to be a power most of the years, the records for some of which are difficult to find. In the 1917-18 season the Dragons beat Titusville, 105 to 30. Titusville seems to be a foil for Warren teams when it comes to high scoring.

One of the records in reverse was established by the 1931-32 team which was able to score only 6 points against Oil City, which got 22. The year before that, Warren won six and lost 15. So don't feel bad, boys, if the season isn't the best in the book. We have had some real duds in the past as well as some greats. In fact, in that period Warren went four years, with its victories never exceeding the losses. It ran 9 and 17, 8 and 9, 6 and 15, and 8 and 8. We now are in one of these fifty-fifty slumps which the current team may terminate.

But when you start talking about records, you still must remove the hat for the boys who played before the game had been speeded up, the ball was a lop-sided thing with a bulge of laces to throw off the dribble, the science of team play was far from developed, and every playground didn't have baskets for summer practice. In fact, there were no playgrounds. The great Heinie Anderson developed his eye with a home-made ring mounted on his garage.

With modern conveniences, the old marks should be toppled. There is just one hitch. The opposition also is improving. You don't find any teams that are exactly set-ups anymore. The game has spread to every hamlet, and any cross-roads that can gather five men together is apt to come up with a champion.

LADIES SKATES

Our articles last week concerning the lack of skates for occupants of the children's home, supported by a plug from Leroy Schneck on the air, brought in enough skates to supply all the boys. However, the girls still were a few skates short. By the time this is read they may be supplied, but in case you want to donate a pair, call the Hoffman Children's home and find out. In fact, if you cannot get to the Home, call the Observer, 1513, and we will pick the skates up.

Just to get the record straight. We take no credit for this idea. Our Sheffield editor, Clara Spade, was the one who thought of the children who might not have skates and spurred us to action.

Hollywood Self-Analysis

Hollywood, which likes to examine itself with the morbid introspection of a monkey picking fleas off its hide, had a field day on Sunday with its favorite pastime. First came an hour and a half long color spectacular called "Inside Beverly Hills," which celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of that citadel of glamour, and directly following it on Goodyear Playhouse (NBC-TV 9 p. m. EST) was a play called "The Starlet" which was supposed to be a ruthlessly honest expose of that widely misunderstood profession.

That adds up to two and a half hours, and I don't know that any of us was much the wiser about the film capital after it was all over. "Inside Beverly Hills" was produced and staged by John Guedal, the proprietor of those indestructible properties, Art Linkletter and Groucho Marx, both of whom were used extensively on the show.

Mr. Guedal and his writers decided to treat the sacred grove lightly, and it was garnished with elephantine touches of humor such as putting the garbage man in a tail coat and making jokes about the number of lawyers and psychiatrists in town. The boys apparently had access to the whole town as a set and they made ample use of it. There was, for example, a ballet up Wilshire Boulevard, tap dancing around the Beverly-Wilshire Hotel swimming pool and a few entrechats at the entrance to Mike Romanoff's celebrated beanery.

They also had access to the exteriors (though not the interiors, darn it) of the homes of a great many of Hollywood's most distinguished citizens. Live TV cameras hurtled around Beverly Hills like fire engines, catching the movie stars at carefully rehearsed play. It was all mighty educational, a slice of life which might have been entitled "Narrow, Narrow World."

Rory Calhoun was caught mowing his lawn. (He confessed he'd never done such a thing before.) Cornel Wilde was found playing catch with his children on the front lawn. Eleanor Powell was discovered reading about the ancient Hebrews to a Sunday school class, and Jimmy Stewart and his wife and four children were captured between church and a trip to the movies. They were a 1, in fact, engaged in marvelously wholesome occupations and the fecundity of the Beverly Hills set -- practically everybody had at least four children -- was an eye-opener.

Art Linkletter interviewed them briefly, being chiefly interested in who lived next door. (Koz Russell lives right behind Harpo Marx. Abe Lyman is a neighbor of the Calhouns.) There was even a visit to one of the last of the old-style Hollywood homes, the Harold Lloyd place, which, with its fountains and formal gardens, looked like something Louis XIV once inhabited.

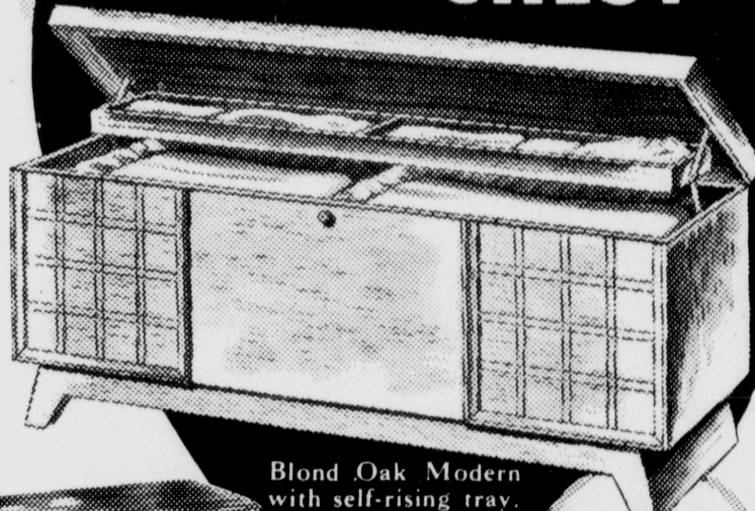

In between the visits there were smidgins of entertainment, Groucho Marx cracking jokes about Hollywood, Helen O'Connell and Tony Martin belting songs, and Peter Lawford doing a parody on the life of a movie star which I found pretty funny. It was a fairly interesting and unusual hour and a half, but it fell way short of being a great show.

Stolitza, a 32-year old veteran of World War Two, has also served with the State Police at Butler, Beaver Co., Mercer Co., Franklin, West Springfield and Girard. The new officer is a native of Dixonville, Indiana Co.

"The Starlet," I guess, was an attempt to grapple with one of the seamier aspects of Hollywood on something like the adult level of "All About Eve," which, I'm afraid, it missed by a country mile. Hollywood starlets are, of course, those girls who pack off to Hollywood after winning a beauty contest, fall into the hands of small time agents or press agents, pose for cheesecake and practically never see the front end of a camera.

The humiliations these girls suffer to break down the gates (which drive some of them to suicide and others to a fate worse than) have never been adequately dealt with. This play started off bravely to do just that, outlining the condition with hardboiled realism, but finished off with what seemed to me to be an awfully artificial and unreal happy ending. However, it was distinguished by fine performances from Ralph Bellamy, a very unappreciated actor, as a cynical agent, and Betsy Palmer as the starlet with big ideas and no talent. It was one Hollywood story, though, in which the star-struck girl doesn't wind up turning into Greta Garbo and for that the author, John Vlahos, deserves a pat on the back. "MR. AND MRS. CIVIL DEFENSE" of Pennsylvania was the name given Warren County Director W. C. Fuellhart and his wife at a meeting of state and local Civil Defense officials this week. Pictured here before a dinner held Monday night are (l. to r.) seated -- Craig Williamson, administrative officer of the state council; Dr. Richard Gertstell, state director; Mrs. Fuellhart and Mr. Fuellhart; standing -- Robert Stimmel, central area director; Sanford Secor, head of county auxiliary police; Jake Deutsch, inventory officer, western area; and Ross Webb, central area director.

BURGESS WILLIAM E. RICE (r.) this week kicked off the 1956 Heart Fund Drive in Warren County. The drive, with a local goal of $5,000, is sponsored by the Warren County Heart Association. Pictured here witnessing Burgess Rice's contribution that opened the drive are (l. to r.) Wendell Peterson, association president; Jerry Coates, publicity chairman; and Elbert Nine, campaign chairman.

ON DEMONSTRATION in Warren Tuesday was this McKean County emergency rescue truck. Pictured here inspecting the wide variety of rescue equipment the vehicle contains is George Geracimos, borough manager.

AN EFFORT TO PROVIDE an emergency rescue truck, similar to the one shown here, to facilitate Warren county is being made by local Civil Defense officials. Such a piece of equipment, which costs $10,000, could be utilized in numerous ways. It is hoped that the necessary money can be provided by the county commissioners and local industry. The Federal government will contribute $5,000 through its matching fund. A storage place for the vehicle is also presenting a problem to officials.

Moon Found Sane By Judge Flick

The ball has been tossed back to the defense in the case of Norman W. Moon, convicted of slaying Judge Allison D. Wade on January 13, 1954. Judge Alexander C. Flick has ruled that he is not satisfied that the defendant is mentally ill as defined in the Mental Health Act of 1951 and the standard set by the Supreme Court in the Moon case.

He then invites the defense to file additional reasons for a new trial immediately and has ordered the case to proceed. It is possible that the defense again will file exceptions, and if these are dismissed it can appeal to the higher court in an effort to obtain an out on the basis of mental illness. Such a procedure might again delay the sentencing.

After Moon was found guilty of murder in May of 1954, a series of legal actions held up the sentencing. Judge Flick finally appointed a sanity commission to help in determining the mental condition of the defendant and upon the request of Sheriff L. E. Linder, Moon was transferred to the Warren state hospital for examination.

He later was released from the hospital and was taken to the Western Penitentiary. At a hearing held in Warren in December, penitentiary observers stated that Moon seemed sane.

Judge Flick ruled earlier in the year that Moon was legally sane and the decision was appealed. The higher court did not refute the Judge's opinion but said it was not based on the Mental Health Act of 1951.

Judge Flick now very succinctly has found that Moon is not mentally ill as defined in that Act and by the standard set by the court. He says,

"The Supreme Court directed me to reconsider the report of the Sanity Commission and to re-examine the evidence, including any additional relevant evidence, and to re-decide the matter using the new and broader test as provided in the Mental Health Act of 1951. Following this direction I restudied the entire record and also heard additional testimony from the guards in charge of Norman Moon in the Western Penitentiary. These guards testified that they had been in continuous charge of Moon for the past eight months or more, that they had noticed nothing unusual or abnormal in his conduct and that they had seen no evidence of a loss of self-control, judgment or discretion."

In his current opinion Judge Flick holds that he is not satisfied that Norman Moon has a mental illness which so lessens his capacity to use his customary self control, judgment, and discretion as to make it necessary or advisable for him to be under care. Therefore, Judge Flick finds that proceedings in the case should continue. The defendant has been ordered to file his additional reasons for a new trial forthwith.

(Ed. Note. The question of Norman Moon's mental health has nothing to do with the time of the crime. It involves only his present mental state and whether or not he can be sentenced. If it is decided that he is mentally ill he must be placed in a hospital until he is sufficiently cured to allow the case to proceed. His mental condition at the time of the crime was decided by the jury during the trial. It found him sane, and pronounced him guilty.)

ELECTED PRESIDENT of the Warren County School Employees Credit Union at the organization's 15th annual meeting was John Stachowiak, Warren high school faculty member. Other officers named were James E. Springer, treasurer; Charles Beck, clerk; Anna J. Hawkins, secretary; H. Lee Griffin, Mr. Beck and Mr. Springer, directors.

These directors will also serve as the credit committee, while the supervisory committee will consist of Miss Grace Bell, Horace L. Blair and Miss Marguerite Fleming.

BUYERS' CORNER

PROTECTION AVAILABLE

For years we have battled a disease which has killed and crippled millions. Our annual financial campaign against it has become traditional. Most of us give readily and the results are beginning to show.

Despite this background we now find an apathy among us that may delay the good which our efforts have made possible. Many parents are doing nothing about providing protection to their children under fourteen years of age. We are speaking of polio, of course, as was so effectively done by our Tidouette editor in last week's issue of that edition.

The Salk vaccine has been proved safe, with standards of production raised to a point that removes any question in the minds of leading medical men, including Dr. J. Thomas Millington, Jr., director of preventive services of the Pennsylvania Health Department.

Though about 400,000 children in this state have received two shots of vaccine, there are about two million who should have the first two shots before summer. Despite the fact that there is plenty of vaccine in some parts of the state, a sudden run on the supply might mean shortages which would require rationing. This could result in well supplied areas losing portions of their protection to areas where the parents are alert to its value and are fully utilizing its life-saving qualities.

The vaccine tends to lose its strength if kept too long and should be used. For this reason it will be shifted to sections where it is wanted. After all these years of giving, researching, and fighting, it is absurd for parents to deny their children the resulting benefits.

Warren county was one of the first to hustle a supply of the vaccine into this section, but many parents who give readily to the March of Dimes have done nothing about protecting their own children. If you want protection next summer, now is the time to act. The cost is only $12 for three shots. Much less than an iron lung or months in the hospital, or worse.

INSURANCE AGREEMENT

The Service Life Insurance Co. of Omaha, Neb., has consented to stop misrepresenting in advertising the benefits of its accident and health insurance policies. Under the order the company must not misrepresent the duration of its policies, the number of accidents and sicknesses covered, the indemnities paid, or the length of time they are paid. This is one of over forty companies charged by the FTC with false advertising.

CONTROLS CHARGED

The FTC has charged B. F. Goodrich Co., Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., the Atlantic Refining Co., Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., The Texas Co., and Shell Oil Co. with restraining competition in the sale of tires, batteries, and accessories.

The oil companies agree to influence their stations and distributors to handle the products of a major company. In return the oil company receives a commission from the accessory maker. But the station operator receives no part of it.

This leaves the station operator with no choice in the products he is to sell, and for his part in this limiting of trade he is not compensated. He becomes a completely controlled agent of the oil company.

However the oil companies receive very choice commissions. It is charged that Firestone sales to Shell in 1953 totaled $14 million, with Shell receiving $1,360,312 in commission. Goodyear gave Atlantic $441,743 in 1952 for exclusive sales of $4,174,890 of Goodyear products by Atlantic stations and distributors, who had no choice in the matter and received no part of the commission.

Such contracts, says the FTC, unduly frustrate, hinder, suppress, lessen, restrain, prevent, and eliminate competition in the marketing of batteries, tires, and accessories.

OWN ANY OF THIS?

If you own a bottle of Kary-On, you will be interested to learn that the FTC says it has no value in treating convulsions, rheumatism, typhoid fever, heart trouble, diabetes, ulcers, epilepsy, asthma, or any condition not caused by a deficiency of Vitamin B1, B2, niacin, or iron.

The makers apparently agree, because they have consented to stop making such false claims in future advertising.

(If you wonder why we bother to mention such items as this, you apparently are not aware of the millions mulched from ailing people every year by the makers of over-rated drugs. But the worst part is the valuable time lost on inadequate cures.)

A NEW APPROACH

In these days when a constant parade of appeals for increased prices is seen, it is worth noting that the Interstate Commerce Commission has been asked to reduce prices in one category. It has granted the Pullman Co. the right to experiment with reduced rates for sleeping car accommodations west of the Mississippi. Lower berths will be reduced the most, forty per cent,

Farmers Worry The Politicians

By Doris Fleeson

WASHINGTON -- Secretary of Agriculture Benson was in deep trouble with Midwest Republicans in Congress long before one of his underlings signed his name to an ill-advised fan letter to the author of an article attacking the "pampered" farmers.

Benson has now disavowed the letter. His difficulty is that his Congressional critics are sure that he agrees with the author and that he is willing to put the farmers through the wringer with all the risks, economic and political, that this involves.

Two things have kept Republicans relatively quiet. One is the fear that if President Eisenhower gets mad at the party he won't run again. The other is some whip-cracking by lobbyists of the Farm Bureau which represents the more prosperous segments of agriculture.

Some Republicans have been so frightened, however, they have even consulted New Deal experts about alternatives to the Eisenhower-Benson program. It is not surprising that farm state legislators want to put more money faster into farmers' pockets; what is interesting is that they are saying humbly the problem is too big for just the politicians.

Not in years has the farm bloc been so divided and so desperate. It wants action but it has no answers. Nor have the Democrats, for all that they are so vocal.

The real vacuum in the White House program is that it sets no prosperity goals for the farmer and so gives him no real encouragement for the future. Nor does it offer immediate, forthright plans to increase farm income, which has dropped about 30 per cent in the last four years. That politicians add this up to political suicide next fall in the farm states should not surprise anyone.

Benson's tolerance for depressed farm incomes until long range programs can right the situation infuriates the politicians. They believe it is utterly unacceptable to the farmer-voters so long as the rest of the economy is booming, and about that they think they are better judges than either of the Eisenhower brothers, Dwight or Milton.

That the President can get approval for a long range program, without immediate remedies too, is improbable. That the proposal of some Democrats for a return to high rigid price supports is a good immediate remedy is widely doubted in that party, and among the biggest doubters is Adlai Stevenson.

Congressional hearings may develop some leadership in the present excess of recrimination.

Senators Douglas and Humphrey have called attention to the changing patterns in agriculture which now runs the gamut from the large, prosperous factory-type farm to the small plots of 50 acres or less on which a million farmers, chiefly in the South, still eke out a livelihood. Their suggested solution is a ceiling on subsidies to the larger producers, a move Congress has heretofore been reluctant to make.

Yet Congress is clearly ready to pay some prices of its own in return for the immediate help that is its political life blood. No such balance of forces has yet been achieved in any program now before it.

FAR-FLYING BIRDS

We always are intrigued by the traveling habits of animals and birds. We see the birds go south and north and often wonder just how far their trips take them. Last year the game commission banded 6,624 mallard ducks. Of these, 796 were shot and the bands returned to the commission for study.

The great majority never left the state, Pennsylvania hunters accounting for 711 of the bands. But some of the others really got around. Twenty-one were shot in Ontario, and one was brought down in Saskatchewan. In case your geography has become a bit vague, that is just north of Montana. (We looked it up.)

Most of the, 29, came from New York. Others were sent in from Michigan, Virginia, New Jersey, Ohio, Maryland, Delaware, North Carolina, Wisconsin, Indiana, Tennessee, West Virginia, Florida, and Kentucky.

Though the ducks so banded seem to wander in all directions, there is an advantage. A big share of them return to the ponds and marshes within the state where they were reared, and they often bring with them migrating birds, thus adding to the quantity during the season when they mean the most to the man with the gun.

DOG SHOOTS MAN

A twist to that old definition of a news story, man bites dog, is to be found in an accident which occurred last fall. A hunter laid down his gun to catch his dog. The dog made a circle and tripped over the gun, causing it to discharge. The shot winged another hunter who was passing by.

COSTLY DEER RUN

A deer in York county attracted attention to herself by using a culvert through which to daily cross the highway. A hunter saved the knowledge until doe season, then took his stand. The doe made her last trip on the opening day.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT

New superintendent of all the Fish Commission's rearing and distribution is Dewey Sorenson, superintendent of the Bellefonte hatcheries since 1930. He replaces C. Ross Buller, chief fish culturist, who resigned effective February 29, after 42 years of commission service.

JUNIOR CHAMPIONSHIPS

The first junior rifle championship as a part of the Pennsylvania Recreation and Sportsmen's Show will be held this year, sponsored by the Pennsylvania State Rifle and Pistol association, and with a trophy donated by the American Legion. There will be other special awards provided by the Girl Scouts, various civic organizations, and the show management.

Information and rules can be obtained from the Show Office, 1612 North Second St., Harrisburg, Pa. If your team is interested we have an entry blank to which you are welcome.

TROPHY DEADLINE

If you plan on entering a trophy in the first North American Big Game trophy exhibit at the Sportsmen's show, the deadline is February 15. You can write to the same address mentioned above for details.

Do not send a trophy unless you have checked the rules. If we understand them, you must have a taxidermist, or someone who understands trophies, help you fill out a scoring sheet. You do not send the trophy to the show unless it is sufficiently good to rate showing.

Obviously the Farm Show Building would be overflowing with moth-eaten trophies if some such rule were not in force. You also bear the shipping costs.

Observations

By Bob Walsh

MILLAGE VS EARNED INCOME

The property and earned income taxes have been given quite a booting around by the press and the public in recent weeks, due mostly to the need of money in some of the larger communities and the search for a way to obtain it. A big share of the state's boroughs have adopted the earned income tax as a means of augmenting the property levy, and a few of them are very close by, such as Titusville.

We mention Titusville because about half the men residents of Tidioute who work out of town do so in that community. If Warren also adopts such a tax, at least fifty male workers in Tidioute will be paying taxes out of town. This places the subject squarely in that community's lap.

Townships in the area also are affected and with money needed in all of these political subdivisions, none wishes to donate a dollar to others. If they must pay taxes they choose to limit it to their own residential area. Which suggests that most of them probably will follow the example set by the larger communities, thus keeping the earned income tax dollar at home.

In case that confuses you, under the law a man can not be double taxed. If his borough or township levies an earned income tax, he can not be forced to pay another earned income tax to the community in which he works.

INEVITABLE?

Finance Chairman Emery, of the Warren borough council, stood on the bridge of his sinking earned income tax brig at the January 23 meeting and predicted that the earned income tax was inevitable. Suggesting that council might as well pass it then as later. This was while it was being proposed that Warren petition the court for the right to levy an additional three mills against real estate.

The earned income tax is inevitable if the people of this state continue to lack the initiative and enlightenment required to direct the modernization of antiquated state laws. State legislators will make no changes unless pushed by their constituents. The law up to now has been kept in a form that benefits those endowed with major assets. No tax is allowed to be graduated.

The nearest you can come to graduation is through the earned income and property taxes. The more you make and the more valuable your property is, the more you pay. But you do not pay proportionately more, and there is no base deduction for the low income groups.

The most inevitable aspect of the earned income tax is that we have leaders who are unwilling to search for other answers. This is the easy one.

The same could be said for the per capita tax. It was an easy one to pass. The public seldom is organized, such as is the case with industry or special groups, and the per capita breezed through.

The earned income tax opposition would have amounted to very little if it had not been for the non-residents. They made most of the noise, and have kicked up the bulk of the ruckus since the tax was first mentioned. Many have spoke as union representatives but in almost every case they have proved to be non-residents also. Where were the Warren union men?

We would like to know where the Warren residents were when council passed a per capita tax. And especially where they were when the school board added one. And on top of all that, where was the local spokesmen when the school board poured on still another per capita, called a resident tax!

This made it $15 a person, no matter what your income, your property value, or willy nilly. The most unfair tax of all! We have been taking it blithely for years and when we finally explode, we do it through the mouths of non-residents and in opposition to a tax based on the amount earned. Far more fair than the per capita tax.

THE BATTLE JOINED

We will not be surprised to hear much more on the tax battle within the weeks just ahead. We doubt if the property tax will be passed. The lines already are being drawn and there are strong influences in Warren who are opposed to any more taxes on property.

This is strange when taken on an individual basis. Actually the property tax will cost the average resident less than the earned income. For example, if your property tax last year was about $100, after you had subtracted your per capita figures, the 50 1/2 mills paid by Warren residents mean that a mill is worth about $2 to you.

The increase of 5 1/2 mills which has been proposed would cost you about $10.50. If you earn about $4,000 a year, the earned income tax would cost $20.

However, the fact is that the earned income tax probably would cost you twice that. We are quite confident that the school board eventually, and maybe this year, would follow the council's lead, use the same tax collector, and levy another half of one per cent. This would make your $4,000 income yield $40 in earned income tax.

Even if your property tax amounts to $200, with each mill worth about $4 in taxes, you would pay only $22 if the 5 1/2 mill increase went through. If your earned income were only $3,000, a full one per cent would make your tax $30. The property tax still would be cheaper.

This suggests that someone must be paying the bill, and perhaps he is the right one. In short, those best able to pay are shouldering a more commensurate share of the load under the property tax set-up than under the earned income.

DROP THE PER CAPITA

We can go along with the earned income tax in one way only. Warren needs about $60,000. In a full year the council's share of the tax will be worth $100,000 (they estimate).

The per capita tax, current and delinquent, yields about $40,000. The public should not accept the earned income tax unless council agrees to drop the per capita.

It will be said that it is too late to act on this in 1956. But how about 1957? How about a definite, public commitment to the effect that the per capita will be dropped? We would be providing the $60,000 needed and replace the per capita $40,000 yield with the $100,000 earned income levy.

REMOVE DISTRESS

There is an easy way to provide relief for Warren county governing groups which are in distress. When the new county commissioners start work on their assessment correction work they could raise the percentage of value. This can be as high as 75 per cent of actual value.

With the resulting increased valuation, the millage could be lowered and sufficient money provided. There would be no need for trips to the court for additional millage approval. This was the intent of the law when the state passed it a few years ago. Why are we not utilizing its benefits?

NO INCREASE?

Another angle we must not overlook in Warren is that the earned income tax does not mean a decrease in millage. Millage will go up anyway. We need an additional 1 1/2 mills for debt payment and it will be added even if the earned income levy is inevitable.

In fact, it is possible that both taxes will be licked. There are some who would work economies in an effort to make the additional $60,000 unnecessary.

We doubt if this is good business. We need more men, the employees need more money, we must pave streets, and there are departments which have enjoyed no increase in their budget for several years despite increased costs.

As Councilman Harry Logan, Jr., said at the last meeting, a fair examination will reveal that the Warren property owners are not overly burdened with taxes. Inasmuch as he obviously represents the tax bracket that is asked to pay the largest share of this tax, it was an interesting statement.

Area Sports

DRAGONS WIN TWO

Warren high floormen continue to share second place in Section Two competition as a result of two straight league wins over Oil City and Titusville. Meadville continues to hold the top position with six wins.

Last Friday the locals invaded Oil City and emerged 80-72 victors behind the 26 and 21 point scoring of Jeff Homan and Ed Rickerson respectively. The Dragons continued to build a margin over the Oilers from the start and by the end of the third period were resting comfortably with a 61-45 score. However, the opponents made a last desperate attempt that cut the difference to eight points.

Elsewhere Friday in the circuit Meadville nosed past Franklin, 54-52, while Corry took a 69-67 thriller from Titusville. The Rockets Boisin gave the best scoring performance as he tallied 29.

This Tuesday the Blue and White blew a 14-point half time margin, but salvaged a 70-67 verdict against Titusville in an away game. Homan again provided the scoring punch with 25 counters, while John Powley added 19 to the total. Boisin paced the losers with 23.

Wilbur Jenkins, scoring marvel of the area, tossed in 44 points in guiding Meadville to an 80-66 final at the cost of Oil City. Franklin was successful in downing Corry, 74-66.

Tomorrow evening at Beaty court the Dragons face a crucial contest with Meadville. Sport fans are looking for a thrilling battle, however, in that the Massamen were only beaten 59-54 in the away game.

Next Tuesday Warren will take a rest from conference play and will entertain Bradford.

Section Two Standings: Meadville, 6-0; Warren, 4-2; Franklin, 4-2; Oil City, 2-4; Corry, 2-4; Titusville, 0-6.

Kulbacki and Moronski were the key men in the Eagles win, tallying 18 points each. For Northern Area Rowland was the big man, tipping in 18.

The league schedule for the next two games is: Friday -- Northern Area at Pleasantville, Tidioute at East Forest, West Forest at Youngsville; Tuesday -- Pleasantville at Tidioute, Youngsville at Northern Area, West Forest at East Forest.

LITTLE POISON

As Bill Beck, a Florida sports columnist says, Toby Lyons has his hand in the pockets of contemporary golfing companions on the Sunset lay-out. Toby not long ago broke the course record with a 60, eleven under par. Recently he followed this up by shooting a 61 in an exhibition match.

The trouble was, the exhibition was supposed to be staged by Jimmy Nichols, the one-armed trick shot artist. But Toby stole the show from Nichols and other pro members of the foursome by going ten under par.

The course is not a set-up. It measures 6,116 yards, and they were playing the back tees. According to Joe Guysick, Toby is up to his old tricks of splitting the pin with his iron game. Guysick said Toby didn't have a long putt, while he, Guysick, had scrambled for some of his birdies when he established the record of 63 which Toby twice has broken.

Toby's secret weapon? He has added a lighter club with a stiffer shaft and is getting 250 to 260 off the tee regularly. Add that to a hot short iron game and any course should suffer.

BEATY LOSES FIRST

Playing at Southwestern last Thursday, Beaty basketballers lost their first contest of the season via a 37-35 decision in favor of the New York State quintet. Coach Bob Fey's cagers not only had their five-game string snapped, but had to give Southwestern undisputed possession of first place in the Chadakoin loop.

On the rebound Tuesday, the Little Dragons bounced back with a 41-35 triumph over Lincoln and remain in second place with a 4-1 record. Southwestern has five wins and no losses.

A poor second half spelled defeat for Beaty on Thursday. After constructing a 24-18 lead at half time the locals cooled off with two-point scoring in the third stanza and had their margin chopped to two. They were out-shined 10-6 in the losing fourth.

Nick Creola of Beaty, and Bob Lange of Southwestern, each tallied 15 points in the scoring department.

Returning home Tuesday, the Feymen used a 26-15 half time margin to win, as the visiting Lincoln cagers hustled up a 20-15 comeback in the late quarters. In the final period it was tied up 31 all before Don McKelvy hit with two quickies that spelled doom.

McKelvy and Bob Haslet racked up 14 and 11 points respectively to head the victors.

This Friday Beaty will close out first half play with a trip to Washington junior high and then return home to play host to Corry in non-conference play Monday.

AREA CAGE ROUND-UP

Still flying high, Mercer basketballers grabbed their 16th and 17th consecutive victories this past week by defeating Cochranon, 107-57, and Greenville, 55-52. New Castle split, winning 68-35 over Warren St. Mary's before dropping to Farrell, 70-62. Butler downed Grove City, 66-50, and Sharpville was triumphant, 64-49, over Middlesex.

Pleasantville nicked Waterford by a 72-34 score. Grove City lost to Hickory in 81-58 scoring. Closer to home it was Punxsutawney 65, Kane 47; Emporium 51, Bradford St. Bernards 38; Jamestown 76, Fredonia 50; Gowanda 48, Southwestern 47.

Out in the direction of Erie the results were Vincent 78, East 72; Tech 82, Prep 76; Academy 74, Harborcreek 68; Academy 70, Kanty Prep 44; East 47, Millcreek 48; Vincent 98, Harborcreek 55; Wattsburg 57, Union City 56; Wesleyville 48, North East 47; Edinboro 67, Girard 68; Lawrence Park 66, Albion 62.

six more years last Tuesday. Bean, who is a lieutenant on the Warren police force in civilian life, spent 10 years on active duty and is probably the oldest member of the Jamestown division.

Regular training in various fields is offered over 50 Warren County men who attend weekly Tuesday night training drills as members of the U. S. Naval Reserve Surface Division, 3-68, in Jamestown, N. Y. The division's present complement is 189 enlisted men and women and officers.

This division, which has ranked high in both district and national competition over the past few years, provides training for recruits, seamen, firemen, and personnel striking for quartermaster, electronics technician, machinist mate and damage controlman rates.

The training center, which is valued over $500,000, is adequately equipped with facilities for rate instruction, as well as with radio and radar equipment.

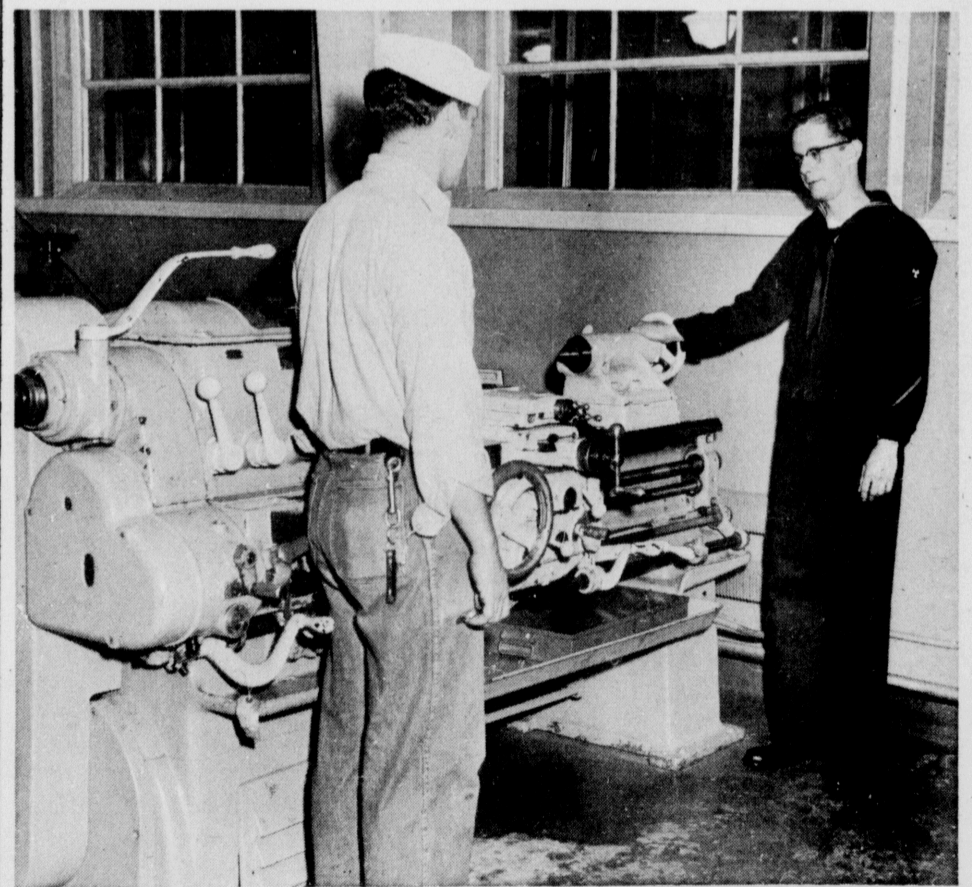

In addition to their weekly training periods, reservists are required to spend two weeks of every year either on an active duty training cruise or at school. The time and type of cruise is selected by the reservist himself.

Personnel helping the program of the area division are Lt. Cmdr. P. C. Brase, division commander; Lt. D. C. Loughlin, training center commander; and Lt. Joseph Seger, executive office. Cmdr. Eunice Carlson, Nurses Corps, is also a member of the division and holds the highest rank that can be reached in the Naval Reserve program.

The Naval Reserve is open for enlistments and will take men at a minimum age of 17 and women at the age of 18. At the present time the division has four Waves, including one chief, serving as reserves.

Officials of the division have extended an invitation to interested persons to visit the training center during Tuesday night drills from 7 to 10 o'clock and will provide guided tours.

PAY BY CHECK

Here is Why:

- You save time and steps, paying bills. No standing on line. No bother.
- You avoid the risk of losing large sums. You carry your cash in your fountain pen!
- Your cancelled checks are receipts that stop arguments before they start.
- You have a permanent record (on your stubs) of how much you spend and for what.

It's so much safer and more convenient to pay by check. Why not stop in and open an account, today?

New Ch. 4 Shows Offer Sunday Variety

SUNDAYS on WBEN-TV now include three new programs, never before telecast in this area, that are as varied as they are entertaining: The Mighty Mouse Theater. Camera Three and You Asked for It.

SOME SHARPSHOOTING on the part of Ed "Wink" Rickerson helped the Warren high quintet chalk up an 80-72 league victory over Oil City last Friday. The big Dragon swished the nets for 21 points in one of his better nights. Jeff Homan, one of the circuit's leading scorers, hit for 26 counters in the game.
